

Looking to make a change and make a difference? Want to know more about a rewarding career in teaching?

Our school has successfully worked with Stockton Teacher Training Partnership (SCITT) training trainee teachers for many years. The course offers both a full time and part time option that leads to Qualified Teacher Status (QTS) and the Post Graduate Certificate in Education (PGCE).

The programme has a strong experiential learning focus, with over 70% of your training based in school. Within school, you are allocated a mentor who is there just for you every day in school. This approach allows you to build strong relationships with school staff and pupils to truly become a member of staff like any other teacher in our school.

Our experienced, enthusiastic, encouraging mentors in school will support you every step of the way.

Why train with Stockton SCITT?

- Well-established provider with a proven track record of successfully training and developing future teachers
- One of only a small number of north-east providers the government has confirmed may deliver teacher training from September 2024
- Opportunity to train full time or part time
- Tax- free bursary (subject to DfE eligibility in certain secondary shortage subjects)
- Very supportive partnership schools in the local area
- School experience from the very start of the training year
- Personalised training and support
- A dedicated Professional Tutor and Mentor to support your development
- Training delivered by subject experts and practising teachers
- Learn practical teaching strategies to implement in the classroom immediately
- PGCE validated by Sheffield Hallam University, taught in Stockton

Past trainees at our school have gone on to successful appointments and careers in teaching, including those who we have employed ourselves here at Ingleby Mill.

For any further information about the programme, visit www.stocktonscitt.uk